I think that people who work really hard all the time should be able to get paid lots of money. It is so unfair that some people work their butts off and put so much effort into their job but others get paid so much money for doing nothing. Most people pretend like they worked but they really did not and they always make excuses for it. I know a lot of people in this world, even in my existing family that work so hard just to earn money for themselves and me. Both of my parents work so hard to earn money that pays for our food, our place to stay (home), and all of the clothes and supplies that we need. I am very appreciative of them and how they buy me stuff with the money they get after working so hard. Life is not easy when you have to work and find a way to provide your family.

My dream is very important to me. I think that people who are very rich and have a lot of money should donate it to the poor people. If you were a billionaire and you had so much money, what would you do with it? I know that I would donate it to the poor people that need it because they don't have anything like food or things that would help them survive. If they had a lot of money they would probably not be on the street. I know that I cannot give poor homeless people all the money in the world because obviously I don't got that kind of money, but at least 20 or 30 bucks would just do them right. Both of my parents are from a country located in East Africa called Ethiopia. They wanted to take me to Ethiopia for the summer so they did and I was really stoked. They are a lot of poor countries in the world and Ethiopia is one of the poorest. When I went to Ethiopia I tried comparing it to my other home (America) and it was so different. They are very traditional there and what's so miserable is that there are kids, animals, and adults that are homeless and they have the most depressing lives. I get really sad when I see them on the street because I may not know them personally but they still are my family and I try every possible way to give them change.

I know that I am not the only person who thinks that people all over the world who are poor should get some money because lots of people beside me understand their difficulties. Lots of people always create foundations or programs and try doing it based on a plan for poor people to get money. Those are the most terrific things to do. Last year there was a typhoon called Haiyan that hit the Philippines, which killed more than 3,600 people. Lots of people donated money to the Philippines which was great. I have no idea who was affected by the typhoon but I can still try being in their shoes, and I hope that everyone there recovers and is able to replace all the stuff that was damaged. And that is why I think that People who have a lot of money should donate it to the homeless and poor. :)
